Our partnership with parents and carers	Headteacher	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> This parent workshop is an important part of Stephen Lawrence Day: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> For strengthening and building upon school-level activities, and In recognition that families and communities have significant influence on shaping children's behaviours, attitudes and actions towards diversity and difference. We invite you as parents and carers to partner with us in achieving the overall aim of Stephen Lawrence Day, which is to enable children and young people to "Live Their Best Life".
Objectives	Facilitator	The three main objectives for this Parent Workshop are to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Understand the aims of Stephen Lawrence Day and to see some of the activities that your child(ren) have been involved in. Explore the themes of Stephen Lawrence Day, and consider how our words, attitudes and actions influence and shape our child(ren). Consider how we can partner to support our child(ren) to "Live their Best Life". 	2
Structure for the workshop	Facilitator	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> This workshop is an activity-based session which encourages discussion and information, in equal measure, so that we can each share our ideas on how to enable our child(ren) to "Live their Best Life", whilst focusing on the key themes of respect, diversity and inclusion in multicultural Britain. The workshop will run as follows. We will: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Provide some background to Stephen Lawrence Day, Share the compelling case, Explore how our Words, Attitudes, and Actions Count, and Have some time for questions and answers. 	3

Running the Workshop

Background to SLD	Facilitator	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Clip from Baroness Lawrence¹. Clip: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=-VTRLX2MWCK As part of Stephen Lawrence Day, the Stephen Lawrence Trust has developed a range of age-appropriate materials for schools, which we have been using to support children to understand the part we all play as individuals in creating a society in which everyone can flourish and to encourage them to “Live their Best Life”. 	4	5 mins
		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The diagram² shows the range of activities and resources we have been using in our Assemblies and classrooms. We would invite you to visit the display³ which provides examples of children’s work. 	5
Compelling Case to work in partnership with parents and carers		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> For some secondary students, focusing on the violence around Stephen’s death would not be appropriate. However, the story of Stephen’s life and his legacy, is not only challenging but also inspiring. It is the lessons from his life, and those of his family that are intentionally the focus for secondary aged students.⁴ The overarching aim is to support children and young people to value difference, embrace diversity, behave responsibly and make positive choices to contribute as active, healthy, engaged citizens in multicultural Britain. Our school is committed to supporting respect and diversity. We know that children learn respect for diversity, in all its forms, from parents, families, peers, the media and teachers. For this reason, we invite you to partner with us, to explore ways to strengthen and support our children’s skills through the lens of the national Stephen Lawrence Day theme: “Live Our Best Life”. In the words of Baroness Lawrence, ‘the lessons of fairness and respect must start early if we are to have a truly fair and civilised society, free from discrimination where we all play our part as active citizens’. 		15 mins

³ Refer parents/carers to a display of student’s work and/or highlight an example of a piece of work from a child.

⁴ There will be schools that are undertaking programmes to address gangs and knife crime, County Lines, and drug and other risk behaviours. Leaders and governors will know the best and most appropriate tailoring of the Stephen Lawrence materials to complement these additional activities.

STEPHEN LAWRENCE DAY PARENT & CARER WORKSHOP SCRIPT: SECONDARY

		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Before we move on to a group activity, we would like to look at this Clip⁵. Choose an aspect of the documentary that best suits your school’s context.
Group Activity	Led by facilitators	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Before we start the activity, take a few minutes to introduce each other at our tables. • The purpose of the activity is to provide parents and carers with a range of scenarios which are likely to occur in most secondary schools and families, and which pose some dilemma requiring a philosophical consideration. There is no “right” answer. By engaging in discussion, we will come to our own understandings, gain insight to those of others, and importantly think about how we might use the discussion to reflect on similar situations that arise with our own child(ren). • Refer to Activity Sheet for Guidance. 	6	30 mins
Feedback on group activity session	Parents and Facilitators	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Invite parents and carers to feedback the group activity discussion. • Finally, we would like to share some strategies which focus on how parents and carers can support their teenagers to build respectful and inclusive attitudes around race, and other aspects of difference⁶. To summarise, the key themes are: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Keep talking: teenagers should be involved in discussions relating to all aspects of difference and diversity (from the News, to their school curriculum, and in relation to their friends and classmates.) • Stay involved: messages about difference exist all around teens – the internet, songs, music videos, advertisements, commercials and social cliques at school. Ask your teen about the group or groups they identify with at school. Discuss stereotypes and labels associated with difference. • Live congruently: discuss the importance of valuing difference. Live and act in a way that reflects your values about respect and diversity. In other words, actions match values. • Broaden opportunities: the wider the experience; the more likely students will identify with difference. Encourage opportunities to interact with peers from all different backgrounds, social circles and cultural heritage. • Encourage activism: promote positive ways your teen can contribute to society to change injustices. For example, engaging in letter writing and/or meeting with community leaders, including the Police, to help resolve issues of injustice. 	7	20 mins
